- The first week of 2009 is down 35% in software units (3,148,293) and 38% in value (£62.7m) compared with the previous week, but considering this comes after the biggest sales week ever, this can be seen as a relatively successful week. The same week last year saw a greater drop-off in sales of 44% in units and 48% in value. Nintendo start the year with the two biggest formats: Wii down 37% in units (765,544) and 39% in value (£15.51m) and DS down 37% in units (665,558) and 40% in value (£11.54m). Xbox 360 falls by 42% in units (622,963) and 43% in value (£14.4m), but still remains within touching distance of Wii in value terms, claiming 23% of all software revenue. PC software traditionally performs well during this week of the year as consumers with new computers look for home office software for their new machines. PC software only drops 5% in units (423,938) and 1% in value (£7.95m). PS3 slips by a similar margin to Xbox 360, down 40% in units (410,558) and 44% in value (£9.67m), while Sony's other formats also follow the market trend with PS2 down 35% in units (138,194) and 44% in value (£1.75m) and PSP down 38% in units (117,539) and 44% in value (£1.75m).
- 2009 begins in a similar fashion to 2008 – with FIFA on top of the All Formats Chart. 'FIFA 09' (80,892) is not only Christmas No1, but is now the first All Formats No1 of 2009, knocking 'Call of Duty: World at War' (75,893) off top spot for a second time, despite a 41% drop in sales. Sales of Activision Blizzard's shooter are down 50%, but it remains 5,000 sales ahead of EA's 'Need for Speed: Undercover' (70,038) which is a non-mover at No3. Activision Blizzard do have reason to be cheerful however with 3 games in the All Formats Top 10: 'Guitar Hero: World Tour' (55,961) moving to its highest ever chart position, up from No7 to No4, and 'Quantum of Solace' (40,294) only slipping one place to No9. The rest of the All Formats Top 10 all shuffle positions with old favourite 'Mario and Sonic at the Olympic Games' (47,985) performing well, up from No9 to No5 and 'Wii Play' (45,521) replacing 'Mario Kart Wii' as Nintendo's highest charting game this week at No6. 'Mario Kart Wii' (41,048) slams on the breaks heavily this week as sales slide 60%, putting it one place behind Ubisoft's 'Far Cry 2' (41,441) at No8. Sega fill the last Top 10 position, steady at No10 with 'Sonic Unleashed' (34,179). In fact, every game in the All Formats Top 40 drops sales except Nintendo's '100 Classic Book Collection' (19,976) which breaks into the Top 40 for the first time at No27.
- From the first week of 2009 Chart-Track has now standardised the budget price points for all software formats within 2 levels. There is a new £14.99 price point covering all older formats (PC, DS, PSP, PS2, Xbox...) and a new £19.99 cut-off for current gen PS3, 360 and Wii (down from £24.99). You will also notice that from the first week of 2009 the DS and Wii Charts have been split into Full Price and Budget Price Charts.
